In an increasingly crowded art fair landscape, FAB Paris also sets itself apart with its commitment to absolute quality, upheld by an expert vetting committee that ensures every piece is of the highest standard. This year, there are 100 galleries taking part and alongside their dynamic presentations, the fair will be highlighted by special curated displays, including a showcase of some of the greatest French Art Deco furniture ever produced, an unprecedented display of the Musée Nissim de Camondo's superlative collection of 18th-century decorative arts, as well as a landmark joint exhibition curated by leading art historian Jean-Hubert Martin.

Visitors will be immediately impressed by the masterful design with scenography thoughtfully conceived by acclaimed French designer Constance Guisset. Her concept responds directly to the Grand Palais's Art Nouveau architecture, using her signature command of color and light to guide the viewer through the spaces, creating an experience that feels both grand and intimate. With 100 of the world's most eminent dealers converging in one place, here are the six essential highlights to seek out.
